The Tech-Powered Instruction Core. The Center for Public Research and Leadership (CPRL) at Columbia University spent a year convening 20+ New York City-based school system, school, and support organization leaders to design, test and measure new ways of activating the “tech-powered instructional core” – the interaction between educator, learner, family, and tech-infused instructional material that drives learning. This playbook captures learnings and recommendations.

Spread the Word: A NYC Reads Family Partnership Toolkit. In an effort to help school leaders collaborate with families in the implementation of NYC Reads, NYC Public Schools' literacy initiative, CPRL and NYCPS developed this toolkit. While specific to NYC, this tool offers valuable guidance for school leaders in any system.

NYC Reads. This NYC Public Schools initiative aims to ensure that all New York City students become strong readers by giving them access to the most effective reading instruction materials and methods. Learn more in this video.
